Bounce Back - Teacher's Handbook Helen McGrath &amp; Toni Noble	The Handbook provides an overview of the research into the concept of resilience and the personal skills and environmental resources that help to protect young people from the negative effects of difficult times in their lives. It discusses ways in which schools can foster resilience through whole-school and classroom practices. It also contains a number of assessment instruments that can assist in identifying the capacity for resilient behaviour in individual students as well as the degree to which specific classrooms and teachers foster resilience. A detailed chapter on managing school bullying is included and some suggestions for working collaboratively with parents.	 R012876	1
Building Resiliency in Schools: An Introduction handbook Jim Peters and Ian Thurlow	Building Resiliency in Schools introduces the concept of resiliency and offers ideas on how it can be applied. Resiliency is a concept that causes us, as educators, to stop and question what we have been doing, and whether we are effective. It makes us think differently. The resource focuses on the processes of human development that promote positive, healthy growth for individuals and groups, as well as organisations. It is about connections, hope and possibility.	 R012874	1
Building Resiliency in Youth: A Handbook Jim Peters and Ian Thurlow	Building Resiliency in Youth is written for people who work with youth.
